FAILURE

is not an opinion (v.1, no.1-9)

you can read this book but maybe you shouldn't. i dont know. you have been warned. please publish this book if you want.

What people are saying about FAILURE:

"It's like somebody ripped open my head and yelled obscenities directly into my soul, which kind of tickled a bit. It was okay, I guess."

-Me (I said this)

"I haven't read it yet. It's still sitting on that shelf I put it on after you gave it to me. I don't actually like reading books. Sorry."

-The Author's Friend?

goodness gracious. this is a book. another book. why?
what is it with you and books? warning:

THIS BOOK IS FULL OF WORDS. YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS WILL CREATE MEANING OUT OF THESE WORDS. I AM NOT SURE IF YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS IS THE SAME AS MY CONSCIOUSNESS. SORRY. WE ARE NOT THE SAME.
WE ARE DIFFERENT? HOW IS IT THAT WE ARE COMMUNICATING? ARE WE COMMUNICATING? AM I TOUCHING YOU? DO YOU NOT WANT TO BE TOUCHED? THIS BOOK IS AN ACT OF TOUCH.

NONE OF THIS IS REAL

okay.

this is probably a book.

[cataloging-in-publication-data] are you cataloging me? is that your job? this book is about life probably, which is hard and sad and beautiful and scary and sublime. it is a mystery (life? this book?). you've been warned? this book is about all the ways that we fail to accomplish any of the things. the things on our list. this is the preface to the forward to the front matter. it comes before other things? we are sooooo tired. the name of this book is your name. who is responsible for this book? probably you. it doesn't exist without the application of your consciousness. anyway, ha ha. anyway. sigh. this isn't actually part of the book.

thank you/about the author

just in case we forget: THANK YOU

the author has not yet formed a coherent theory of authorship that would accurately give credit to all of the entities that are responsible for the existence and/or non-existence of this book. so, what we are saying (I guess) is that the author does not even know who they are so the author maybe cannot give you any information about itself that would be true. everything that we say is true because it exists in the world (it's a fact). okay, just kidding. i am the author and i love you.
